Dear Friends

On behalf of the Directors of The Center for International Health and Cooperation (CIHC), I am pleased to offer, once again, the International Diploma in Humanitarian Assistance (IDHA) in Nairobi, Kenya. The IDHA is a core program of the CIHC, and is done in cooperation with Fordham University, the Royal College of Surgeons in Ireland and The United Nations System Staff College.

The Center for International Health and Cooperation (CIHC) was founded in 1992 to promote healing and peace in countries shattered by natural disasters, armed conflicts and ethnic violence. The Center employs its resources and unique personal contacts to stimulate interest in humanitarian issues and to promote innovative educational programs and training models. Our extensive list of publications and regular symposia address both the basic issues and emerging challenges of humanitarian assistance.

The IDHA serves the United Nations and other international humanitarian agencies and organizations. Over nine hundred and fifty IDHA graduates from some 121 nations now hold leading positions in humanitarian operations around the world.

OVERALL COURSE OBJECTIVES - COURSE FORMAT

The humanitarian world is changing quickly, requiring a greater level of professionalism and accountability. Practitioners work in increasingly complex situations that require a multi disciplinary approach.

This course, designed as an intensive four week program, enables aid workers to receive training with a minimal disruption of their field responsibility, reproduces some of the complexity and intensity of conditions faced normally in a field situation.

The IDHA teaching methods include lectures, case studies, practical exercises and scenarios. A wide range of disciplines involved in humanitarian programs will be studied throughout the course. These include management, logistics, health, psychology, social sciences, anthropology, engineering, communication, agriculture, environment, education, conflict resolution, international law, civil/military relations, security, media, politics and economics.

Overall Course Objectives

1. To provide volunteers and professionals from a wide variety of backgrounds with a comprehensive insight into the needs with refugees and internally displaced people in acute and chronic settings and equip them with the awareness, understanding and skills that are essential for effective service in a humanitarian crisis.
2. To enable humanitarian workers to function effectively, both as individuals and members of a team, in acute and chronic situations of conflict and disaster.

3. To promote cooperation and dialogue between international, governmental or non-governmental agencies involved in humanitarian action (assistance and protection).
4. To evaluate interventions and identify examples of good practice.
5. To examine ways in which humanitarian crisis may be anticipated and prevented.

Syndicate Work

An important aspect of the IDHA program is to promote an approach of cooperation and teamwork rather than competition and individualism. This is encouraged at a personal level in the sharing of expertise as a member of a 'syndicate' composed of people from a wide variety of experiences and organizations who will work together as a team for the duration of the course. Each syndicate is assigned to one of the core tutors who will act as a mentor for the students in the syndicate.

Case Studies

The case studies will focus on examples of acute, escalating and chronic humanitarian crises, both natural and man-made. Lessons will be drawn from their origin, evolution, and where appropriate, resolution. Particular attention will be given to the role of the international community in cooperation with local authorities and civil society in attempting to avert and/or respond to these crises.

Research Paper

Reflection on humanitarian issues is necessary to evaluate the quality of assistance provided by aid workers. We ask you, therefore, to understand, value, judge and provide answers that are realistic and consistent with the issue you have chosen. The research paper is an academic exercise, and, as such, needs to be well researched and documented to support your position.
